Updated the SIG/Chapter Website within the past calendar year.	Yes

Comments

In keeping with its mission, AISWN continues to advance the goal of promote a network for supporting women scholars in information systems and to enable mentorship relationships that are crucial to speed the success of women in the information systems field. Our membership roster has over 185 AIS members The AISWN has worked with AIS to integrate membership and setting up the website connections to AIS. AISWN members represent academic (faculty and doctoral students) and a variety of industry and service sectors. The membership has a global impact representing over 30 countries and six continents. We have both a LinkedIn (344 members) and Facebook (73 members) presence since 2011. We have a discussion listserv on AIS groups with 172 members currently.

Specifically, in 2016 the AISWN supported the offering of a Childcare at AMCIS 2016. Though there were not a sufficient amount of attendees, who signed up for the service, it was believed that a longer lead time might improve the numbers in future offerings.

This report was easy to complete	Disagree
I was able to complete this report in a reasonable amount of time	Disagree
Additional comments about the new form.	Wish we could just turn in an annual report that we do already.

Is an updated online community platform something your Community (SIG, Chapter, College) would be interested in using?	Yes
Why or why not?	Anything that makes the communications with members easier, is a good thing.
What features would you want in an online community platform? (check all that apply)	- Single Sign On with AIS website profile - Access for non-members - Group Directory - Discussion Forums - Discussion forum digests (daily or weekly emails) - Group Calendar - Mobile friendly (phone, tablet, etc) - Group Email (easily send email to all group members) - Social media integration - Roster reports - Event registration
Please list any additional features you would like here.

For those attending ICIS, please note that the AIS Women's Network ICIS Social is tonight from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.at the Gresham Hotel, Trinity 1 (bottom floor). This includes the Business Meeting.

We have a wonderful guest speaker, Janine Bosak, from Dublin City University, who will kick off the event with a few brief remarks. Dr. Bosak is a Senior Lecturer in Organisational Psychology and Director of Research of the Leadership and Talent Institute (LTI) at DCU. She also manages the DCU Business School doctoral programme as Director of Doctoral Studies.

Hope to see you there!

Whether the bias is unconscious or not ... it's still pretty annoying! Last week at AMCIS, I attended a panel session where there was one woman and several men on the panel. The person introducing everyone was male. All men were introduced as Dr-such-and-such and the woman was introduced only by first name. Unfortunately this is still common.

Karen Day Yup it is insulting. And when you confronted by an insult you decide on action or no action. I correct people in this instance and pause for the effect to be felt.

University of Texas at Dallas

I'm pleased to forward this announcement. Please pass along to colleagues or great students looking for an exciting, growing set of programs where they can have a significant impact through their work. Colleagues in the Information Systems area at the Jindal School are not only having an impact in the classroom with our students, but also through ongoing research and contributions to curricula efforts, such as the ACM/AIS MSIS 2016 task force (https://msis2016review.wordpress.com (https://msis2016review.wordpress.com/)) and project management curriculum development efforts at PMI (pmiteach.org). A tenure-track search in the Information Systems area has also been posted (jobs.utdallas.edu/postings/6711 (https://jobs.utdallas.edu/postings/6711)).

The Naveen Jindal School of Management (http://www.jindal.utdallas.edu/) at the University of Texas at Dallas (http://www.utdallas.edu/) seeks to fill two non-tenure track faculty positions at the Clinical Assistant Professor or Senior Lecturer I rank.

The positions are housed in the Information Systems area, and the appointments will be effective Fall, 2017.

- One position is intended for candidates who can teach machine learning and data science courses in the Business Analytics program. More information about our Business Analytics program can be found at jindal.utdallas.edu/isom/information-systems-programs/... (http://jindal.utdallas.edu/isom/information-systems-programs/ms-business-analytics/)
- The second position is intended for candidates who can teach courses in cybersecurity, privacy, cloud computing, and/or IT governance, in our undergraduate and graduate programs. More information about our undergraduate Bachelor of Science in Information Technology and Systems can be found at jindal.utdallas.edu/isom/information-systems-programs/... (http://jindal.utdallas.edu/isom/information-systems-programs/bs-its/), and about our Master of Science in Information Technology and Management graduate program can be found atjindal.utdallas.edu/isom/information-systems-programs/... (http://jindal.utdallas.edu/isom/information-systems-programs/ms-information-technology/)

Candidates for both positions will be required to engage in service activities within the university and the profession. A doctoral degree is preferred, but those with relevant Masters degrees and appropriate industry experience will be considered at the application/interviewing stage.
Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the positions are filled.

The University of Texas at Dallas is an Equal Opportunity / Equal Access / Affirmative Action Employer.

Applicants should submit their curriculum vitae (educational history, teaching, research and other pertinent work experience, list of publications and presentations), and three reference letters via the online application system available at jobs.utdallas.edu/postings/6620 (http://jobs.utdallas.edu/postings/6620).

Call from ISJ Editors-in-Chief for Greater Participation of Women in the Journal

I am reaching out to members of the AIS Women's Network to solicit participation in Information Systems Journal.   When the founding editors-in-chief, David Avison and Guy Fitzgerald, retired in 2012 I became one of the three new editors-in-chief. In addition to maintaining the high standards of this AIS basket of 8 journal, another mission has been to increase the diversity of the journal. We have been pursuing this mission in several ways. We three editors represent the three AIS regions (Eileen Trauth – North/South America; Robert Davison – Asia/Pacific; Philip Powell – Europe/Africa) so as to increase the geographical diversity of journal participation. We have also clarified in our inaugural editorial (July 2012) that while the motivation to start the journal was to provide a publication outlet for qualitative work, we have broadened our mission. We welcome research that employs all methodologies and epistemologies. Finally, we are interested in increasing the gender diversity of ISJ. This means increasing the number of women who serve on our editorial advisory board, the number of women who serve as senior and associate editors, the number of women who serve as reviewers, and the number of women who publish in ISJ. Please consider becoming involved with ISJ in one of the following ways:

We are currently reconstituting the editorial advisory board. The role of this board is to give us advice on strategic directions for the journal, to encourage submissions, to recommend special issues, and to occasionally review papers. Members of this board are typically full professors or senior associate professors. If you are interested please send me an email along with a link to your CV.

We would also like to increase the number of women in the peer review pipeline. You could begin by becoming an ISJ reviewer. The next step would be associate editor. After some experience, when a position opens you could become a senior editor. If you are interested in one of these roles please send me a link to your CV and a brief statement of your research expertise that includes the topics of your research and the methodologies/epistemologies you employ.

Please consider submitting manuscripts to ISJ. Because we publish six issues a year there is not an overly long time lag from submission to publication. If you are not familiar with Information Systems Journal I encourage you to read the July 2012 editorial.
